he Second Bloody Chapter in the Feud Between the Codys and MacGregors.

The Law Placed at Defiance, and the Result a Killing in Broad Daylight.

An Oklahoma Editor and Lawyer Roughly Handled by Indians Who Fear His Influence.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct, 12.-The second bloody chapter in the history which began with the shooting of S. E. McGregor in his own yard Friday night, Dec. 23, 1887, was enacted upon the streets of Warrenton, Ga., to-day in the killing of J. M. W. Cody by C. E. McGregor. Cody had just ridden in from the country, and after alighting from his buggy started to walk up the srreet. McGregor, who saw him from across the street, crossed over, and drawing revolver fired three shots at Cody, who died in a short time.

Cody had been indicted by the grand jury for an assault with intent to murder Mc-Gregor, and the case was set for trial at the October term, which was was held in War-October term, which was was held in Warrenton this week. Cody was placed under bonds of $2,500 to be present, but when court convened Cody was not present, and although a bench warrant was issued for his arrest, he could not be found. Today, after court adjourned, he rode into town. McGregor afterward said to an Associated press reporter: "When Cody deliberately evaded the law and planted his impudent definince in my face, it was more impudent defiance in my face, it was more than human could stand. If the courts would not punish this man for trying to assassinate me, I determined to do it my-self." McGregor is the railway agent at Warrenton and has represented his county in the legislature. Cody was a prominent citizen of the place. worth $40,000, and widely connected throughout the country.

The Troubles of an Editor,

GUTHRIE, I. T., Oct. 12 .- W. P. Thompson, editor of the Guthrie Daily News, and the attorney for the Iowa Indians, returned to-day, after having experienced outrageous treatment at the Otoe reservation. He went there last Wednesday with two interpreters in his capacity as attorney for the Iowas, to consummate a plan for the removal of that tribe of eighty persons from their own reservation near Guthrie to that of Otoe, all the preliminaries for the transfer having all the preliminaries for the transfer having been previously arranged. A pow wow was in full progress when a party of half-breed scouts, hostile to the proposed removal, made an attack upon the council and the interpreters took to the woods. Thompson managed to reach Red Rock station, and managed to reach Red Rock station, and there he was discovered by the pursuing Otoe scouts, who, at the point of a musket, marched him to the agent's house, where he was examined. He was finally allowed to go, after being refused food and snelter, and was obliged to walk to the nearest station. This treatment is supposed to have been dictated by the fear that he would be instrumental in causing the Otoes to con-sent to the opening of their lands to settle-

London, Oct. 12.-Attachments have been ssued against the property of nine of the directors of the bankrupt Comptoir des Compte, which was ruined by the failure of the copper corner. Six of the responsible directors of the institution are now imprisoned, having been convicted of violating he banking law in advancing funds of the bank as loans upon copper certificates. The directors and accountants were sentenced to pay to the liquidators of the bank for the benefit of its creditors the sum of £760,000 and to stand committed until the amount is paid. This means a life sentence to most of those convicted, as they themselves were ruined by the bank's failure.

TRYING TO BUY THE JURY.

Exposure of a Conspiracy to Corrupt the Men Who Will Try the Cronin Suspects.

The Story of One of Those Who Was Offered Money for His Vote

Court Officers and Well Connected Out siders in the Plot-Some Arrests and More to Follow.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 .- One of the boldest, most corrupt and infamous plots ever brought to the notice of the public was outlined by States-Attorney Longnecker's right hand man, Mills, this afternoon. The conspiracy not only includes county officials, but outsiders of high standing, and several arrests have already been made, but more the plot, and thus gain the end which the friends of the defense have been working on for the last five months. "States-Attorney who was commissioned by the states attorney to talk to reporters, "that this plot has not been disclosed because it would have defeated justice had the information we possessed been made public. We cannot now give any names or details, but the outline of this conspiracy can now be given. It will be remembered," continued the attorney, "that on last Wednesday afternoon an honest young man, who is employed as foreman in a large establishment in this city, was examined and excused for cause."

It is understood, though not stated by Attorney Mills, that the name of the venireman attempted to be bribed is George Stachappatt. He is a foreman for E. V. Page & Co., oil merchants in this city. "Thursday afternoon," said Mills, very prominent citizen of Chicago entered the court room and privately communicated to the counsel for the state that his foreman, the venireman in question, before be ing called to the jury box, had been approached by a bailiff of the court with an offer of a thousand dollars to vote for the acquital of the defendents. He says: 'This is not a cock-and bull story, and I bring it before you in the interest of public jus-tice.' He then went away and the next morning one of the counsel for the state went down to the factory of the man whose foreman had been offered a bribe, and the moment he saw the foreman bribe, and the moment he saw the foreman he recognized him as a man whose honesty and independence had impressed itself upon the counsel for the state while he was sitting in the jury box. The man made a full statement and was requested by counsel for the state to come to the state-attorney's office and repeat his statement in full. The man, with tears in his eyes said: 'It involves a friend, but if it involved myself, I would uphold law and myself, I would uphold law and order. The gist of his statement to counsel, which he subsequently gave to the states attorney, is as follows: In obedihis statement ence to a summons he came to the court house. Tuesday afternoon I sat in the anteroom, but was not called. He came again Wednesday morning, staid in the ante-room again and at 10:30 o'clock a man came from the court room into the ante-room who was an old friend of the venireman. The fact also appears that the wives of the two men were friends before they were married.

"The man who came from the courtroom to venireman suggested that they go out have a cigar. While there a man from and have a cigar. the courtroom said to the venirman: 'Do you want to make money?'

"The venireman innocently answered: 'Certainly, I do.' "'Very well, you get on the jury and stick for an acquittal and you will have $1,000.

The contract and arrangements can be carried out with your wife. It can be arranged that she shall wear a certain colored dress if the money is paid her on a certain day. If the money is not paid her on that day, she is to wear a different colored dress, and the contract is to be off. The venireman turned reproachfully to his friend and said, 'I am not that kind of a man,' whereupon the bailiff replied, 'I am working for the court.' He then pointed to a buggy standing outside and remarked, 'That is my horse and buggy.'

''At the noon adjournment the venire went back to his place of business, and sub-sequently returned to the court house at 2 o'clock, after which he was detained and returned to the jury box, where he remaine until 4:30 o'clock, when he was excused for cause. He left the court house, tending to return to his place business, but on leaving the co business, but on leaving the court house he met on the steps leading to the sidewalk the man who had attempted to and damp him make him do it.'

"It was too late, however, the venireman had been excused for cause, but he at once returned to his place of business, having reproached the man for putting such a low es-timate upon him, and reported to his employer, a prominent citizen, what had taken place, who the following day reported it to the prosecution. Pursuant to appointment the venireman went to the states-attorney. and having made a full statement of every thing that took place, was requested to step into the ante-room and the bailiff was summoned. He proved to be one of the bailiffs of the criminal court, who, during the trial or the attempt to procure a jury, has been in charge of one of the five prisoners, Coughlin. The bailiff was questioned clo ely by the states attorney and his associates, but professed profound ignorance until the venireman was called from the ante-room. The venireman was requested to repeat the statement he had made, which he did, whereupon the bailiff made a complete confession in which he implicates

We have had confessions this very day," said Mills at a subsequent interview later this afternoon. "These confessions are from six to eight in number. They are absolute, giving us the whole miserable con-spiracy. They reveal a most damnable organization against the law of the land. A conspiracy against the jurisprudence of this country that will startle the continent when it is thoroughly known; a conspiracy of vast ramifications, of unheard of audacity, a conspiracy involving men whose names will be a surprise to the coun-It is no exaggeration when I say that you cannot magnify the damnable outrag of this conspiracy. In the taking off of Dr. Cronin and the manner in which it was done, the whole world was startled. This second conspiracy will alike startle the whole world. It is an assault on the very

Smith, Tom Kavanagh and Tom Leanott, Hanks has been a bailiff for eight or nine years. Solomon was appointed bailiff a year and a half ago. Smith is unknown about the court house, and Tom Kavanagh about the court house, and Tom Kavanagh was an engineer at the county insane asylum during the boodlers' regime, and was mixed up in their case. He is now in business here, and, strange to say, his partner was summoned for jury duty, but was peremptorily challenged by the state when his connection with Kavanagh was learned.

A fifth indictment was agreed upon against Jeremiah O'Donnell, who was recently appointed a guager at South Chicago. At 10:20 it was reported that two additional indictments, seven in all, had been made.

According to the statement by Lawyer Mills it was Bailiff Solomon who first at-tempted to bribe the man, who was named to be summoned as a juror. Solomon also is the man whose confession was obtained. Solomon turned over to the states-attorney a list of names and addresses of said to be prospective corrupt jurors. Only two of the ist had yet been summoned and neither was yet examined. Solomon said the list had been furnished him by Balliff Hanks, while they were seated in the court room, just behind the Cronin suspects, whom they were guarding. Hanks had said $2.000 would be given for a fixed law. whom they were guarding. Hanks had said $2,000 would be given for a fixed juror, half to the man in the box and half to the bailiffs. Last night, Mr. Mills' narrative continued, the men on the list were interwill follow before morning. Not content with the bribery of men, an attempt has been made to drag even innocent women into Smith, a hardware manufacturer's agent. Another citizen was similarly approached by a citizen. O'Donnells part, as told by Mr. Mills, was similar to that of Smith's. He sounded at last one man and offered him $1,000. O'Donnell, who was arrested early in the evening, is said to have confessed that a person understood to be Kavanagh guaranteed that the money offered would be forthcoming. It is supposen the corrupted veniremen were carefully instructed as to their manner while being examined in court, being told how they should answer, and be gruff with the lawyer for the defense.

The official list of indictments given out about 10:30 p. m. contained five names: Solomon, Smith, Kavanagh, O'Donnell and Joseph Kohn. The latter is a fruit dealer, who was to go on the jury and get $1,000 from Hanks.

About midnight the special grand jury adjourned. Their report was short and formal in character, except for an intimation that the jurors believed the plot to be more widespread than was indicated by the six indictments returned. All the indicted persons spent the night in the county jail.

SOLD HIS SEAT.

Congressman Nutting Resigns Upon the Payment of $7,500.

Oswego, N. Y.-[Special.]-The resigna to be already in the hands of the governor. The gossip about it is interesting. It is to the effect that Congressman Nutting, knowing that his health would not permit him to resume his seat in the house of representatives, signified his willingness to resign under certain conditions. It was then, so the story goes, that Gen. John N. Knapp of Auburn, John H. Van Camp, the boss of Wayne county, and ex-Congress man Serono Payne of Auburn got their heads together and fixed up a scheme to send Mr. Payne to congress to serve out Mr. Nutting's unexpired term if Nutting could be induced to resign.

A conference was said to have been arranged, at which Congressman Nutting agreed to resign if the salary he would receive in the event of his remaining in office were made good. This amounted to $7,500, and was no small sum for the bosses to raise. Mr. Payne, it is said, was willing to contribute $1,500 of the amount, with the understanding that the nomination should be given him without a contest of any sort, as he did not propose to hand over that amount and have a wearisome and expen-sive canvass in addition. Assistance was asked from the republican state committee it is said, and in various ways the $7,500 was raised and paid to Mr. Nutting, who thereupon wrote his resignation.

The twenty-sixth congressional district is composed of the counties of Oswego, Cayuga and Wayne, and it is said that the bosses in these counties have things so tightly corked that there is no question the nomination of Mr. Payne. It is pected that the special election to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Nutting will be ordered by the governor to take place on the day of general election

If the Commissioners Do Their Duty There Will be Only Slight Changes in the First Figures.

BUTTE, Oct. 12.-[Special.]-The board of county canvassers finished their labor of counting the votes at the recent election at 5 p. m. but the result of the count is not obtainable to-night, and probably will not be made public before Monday. Nearly every precinct of the thirty-three in the county will be contested, and the board this evening is hearing arguments of the legal lights growing out of the contest Messrs. The arguments were long and covered all the legal points in the important cases, and were not finished till 11 o'clock, when a motion to adjourn till Monday was acreed to.

There is much excitement in the city to-night over the counting. Crowds are collected about the streets, and threats are openly made in case the two precincts are thrown out. The throwing of these two precincts would elect six or seven republican representatives and several of the county officials. Yesterday's interview Prince Bismarck endeavored to convince the Czar that the European peace alliance was nonaggressive. and directed toward the regulation of the objects of the Berlin treaty, and as a final stroke that all the great powers excepting France, were united to prevent or shorten an European conflict. It is believed the presence of the English squadron at Kiel was meant to impress upon the czar the fact of English co-operation, just as Emperor William's visit to Constantinople marks the absorption of Turkey into the peace league. Bismarck is reported as advising the czar that in view of this coalition, Russia had best adopt a policy of conciliation, recognize Prince Ferdinand as ruler of Bulgaria, and aid the other great powers in effecting a permanent peace, a programme that will ultimately result in decreased armaments and increased pros-perity. The gracious behavior of the czar toward Bismarck at last evening's dinner is a notable change from his aversion to accord the chancellor an interview.

If the conference adheres to the present limits of the programme, Herr Sieveking will propose a special conference on the excluded questions. This line of action will probably be arranged in conjunction with England.

LIVINGSTON, Oct. 12.-[Special.]-Col. E Lamartine, superintendent of road work in the National Park, is in Livingston to-day, making arrangements for putting in a saw mill at this point. It is his intention to float logs down the Yellowstone from Cedar creek, where he now has a force of men at work getting out logs and depositing them along the river bank. He stated that about twenty-five miles of new road had been constructed in the park this season at a cost of about $60,000, $11,000 of which was expended in building but two miles n G and canyon. Of the appropriation for the year ending June next but $15,000 remains and will be expended in road repairs before travel commences next spring. It is the intention of the colonel to stop operations in the park for this season about Oct. 25.

A report has not yet been made of these observations.

Mayor Grant Enjoined.

New York, Oct. 12.-Mayor Grant this morning called a meeting of the board on electoral control, and a resolution was adopted ordering the immediate removal of all electric light wires not properly insulated. Before the work of removal could be begun, a temporary injunction was served ing with the wires of either the United States Illuminating company or the Brush

Electric Light company.

An interview with Edison is printed this afternoon, in which he says no insulation will make an electric light wire safe, and that subways and insulation will alike prove ineffective, and that the only way to prevent loss of life is to regulate the pressure, the same as the pressure of steam boilers

General Manager Kimball to be Succeeded in a Very Few Days by Edward Dickinson.

An Advisory Position to be Created for the Retiring Manager at Omaha.

C. S. Mellen to be Promoted and to Have Charge of All the Traffic of OMAHA, Oct. 12. - [Special.] - Anothe r sweeping change is to be made in the officia I. ranks of the Union Pacific. It means the retirement of T. L. Kimball from the position of general manager and the appointment of Edward Dickinson as his successor, The statement that such a change is to be made in a few days may be traced to W. V. Holcomb, vice president of the road, who made it prior to his departure for Boston. It has been known for some time that a deal of this kind was on foot, and that unless the officials in Boston interfered it would be consummated inside of the next ten days. The latest advices from Boston are to the effect that no opposition will be made to the change, and that it will be made at the meeting to be held in that city on Wednesday next.

Upon the appointment of Mr. Dickinson as general manager, the department of assistant general manager will be abolished. It has been decided to extend the inrisdiction of C.S. Mellen, general traffic manager, over the entire system, and confer the title of general traffic manager on him. The heads of traffic and supply departments will then report direct to the vice-president. The duties of the general manager will be confined to operating exclusively, and division superintendents, superintendents of motive power and heads of the operating departments will report direct to the general manager. The jurisdiction of the latter at this point will, in all probability, be extended to Ogden, which will divest the general management of the consolidated system of the Wyoming division. It is semiofficially announced that Mr. Kimball will not sever his connection with the Union Pacific, but on the other hand will be retained in an advisory position. The office of third vice president is to be created for this emergency. Mr. Kimball's headquarters will be at Omaha, and his duties will be confined to transactions with the Boston office. It is thought that a circular will make its appearance announcing the above change in a short time. Mr. Kimball is expected to return from Boston Monday.

AN INVITATION TO GOBBLE.

The English Want Uncle Sam to Annex the Sandwich Islands. LONDON, Oct. 12 .- The Times save in view of the amount of English capital invested in the Sandwich islands, England could not see them pass into the hands of any foreign power with indifference; but that their acquisition by the United States would be regarded with more equanimity than their spoilation by any European power, to which the British government would never submit. The whole tone of the article points to the desire that the United States government may see its way clear to gobble up the islands, and the writer's intention is evidently to encourage Uncle Sam to adopt such a course. If the Present Tory government, of which the Times is to some extent the mouthpiece, has any axe to grind by inducing the United States to depart from its traditional policy of minding its own business, few people on this side of the water expect to see it succeed. Well, intermediate the course of the second control of the same process. ceed. Mrs. Louis Ernst, of St. Louis, who has been suffering from dementia some time, eluded her attendants yesterday, went out on the bridge and leaped into the river, one hundred feet below. A fisherman saw and rescued her with a skiff. Strange to say she was injured very slightly.
